

Assumptions Made:

1. An operator cannot exist without operating at least one ship
2. A cruise's manifest can be obtained by looking at the bookings that have the cruise's id as a foreign key
3. A passenger's date of birth, and their assigned guardian if they are under 18, are checked and recorded during booking
4. A ship must have at least one cabin
5. A booking isn't deleted when the cruise it is booked for is over. Therefore, a cabin can belong to many bookings, although there should only ever be one booking that hasn't already expired
6. A ship's maximum capacity is calculated from some other attributes, and is not manually recorded
